Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

We hope that Larry Moore holds no hard feelings against Murray.

Larry is vice-president of the Winslow Engineering Corporation in charge of manufacturing, and every time he comes to Murray it rains.

The last time he arrived we had some "unusual weather" and practically flooded the newly established company right on down Clark's River.

He was due to come in to Murray yesterday by plane and, you guessed it, it was raining when he arrived, with the forecast of more to come.

About the only thing we could say to him is you should have been here last summer.

A lot of folks can cut up a trying size chicken and make it look the same every time, but we can't. It comes out different every time we cut one up and we have long since failed to recognize the choice pieces.

Time was when the chicken looked the same every time and we could cover up the good pieces with the liver, gizzard and wings, hoping they would be overlooked. We can't even recognize them now.

Have you noticed the old sawdust burning out by the Dairy Ann. The sawdust is probably a foot thick over the whole lot where Sykes Sawmill used to be.

It will take a real rain to put that fire out. Just smolders away.

Lorraine Burken over at the Peoples Bank is a nice fellow.

On being introduced at the combined meeting of the Lior, Rotary, and YBMC clubs the other night, Bob Miller told the group that the YBMC was only a local club and worked on small projects such as the Gilbertville Dam and the gym at Murray State College. Everyone laughed but Bob was telling the truth. The YBMC was a guiding light on both projects.

Gunmen Force Way In Prison Free Buddies

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Two gunmen who forced their way into the Monroe County Penitentiary early today were arrested several hours later along with one of the two prisoners they released in an escape plot apparently hatched inside the prison walls.

Monroe County authorities and state police picked up two of the men in an alley in downtown Rochester. The third was arrested in a hotel which police raided on a tip from a taxi driver.

Police found George Duke Bonner, of 430 Jefferson Ave., Washington, Pa., at the Seager Hotel just after dawn. Later they picked up Paul R. Freeman of Rochester and James Compton, 30, of Cohocton, O., behind some bushes.

The gunmen tied two guards, Clyde H. Jeffers, 63, and James Marshall, 64, took their wallets and keys and escaped in Jeffers' car with the prisoners.

State police, Rochester city police and sheriff's men were alerted and road blocks set up on all highways in the immediate area. A 13-state order was issued. Guards at two Niagara Falls bridges and one Buffalo bridge were told to take every precaution to prevent the four men from escaping into Canada.

The released prisoners were identified as James Compton, 30, of Cohocton, Ohio, serving a year on a bad check charge, and Anthony Mendolla, 43, Rochester, serving a year for petty larceny.

The two men were released from the same cell block and guards said they apparently had become friends while in the prison.

John W. McKenzie, prison superintendent, said the gunmen appeared familiar with the prison and went immediately to the cell block where Mendolla and Compton were locked up. He said the gunmen probably had been released recently from the prison and had hatched the invasion-escape plot with the prisoners while all were behind bars.

Neither Jeffers nor Marshall said they recognized the gunmen, however. McKenzie said the invasion of the prison occurred when the guard detail was at its weakest. McKenzie said one of the gunmen came to the door of the prison shortly after midnight and said he had a package for Compton and Mendolla. Jeffers, who was on duty at the door, started to check the names given him with a list. When he looked up from the list the man was pointing a revolver at him. Jeffers said both men carried guns that appeared to be either 32 or 38 caliber revolvers.

The second gunman entered after the first drew his gun and together they tied Jeffers hands. They took his keys and $140 from his billfold. Then they confronted Marshall, tied his hands, took his keys, and took $18 from his wallet.

Reducers Meet Nightly At Health Center

A group of reducers met Monday night at the Health Center to check on their own and each other's weight losses. Some of the reducers had contributed copies of their menus which were used as an exercise in choosing foods most suitable for reducers.

Two members of the group dramatized a bridge party scene of a hostess urging her guest to eat a huge serving of well-larded cake. The guest was most gracious, but firm in her refusal. Reducers agree that party refreshments present a real problem, but they hope someday that their hostesses will serve interesting salads instead of the usual desserts which clog calories.

Some members of the weight control group are doing their exercises together, and find it fun. They meet at the Health Center nightly about 20 or 30 minutes.

Regular follow-up class will be held second and fourth Monday nights at 7 p. m. at the Health Center. Any person desiring to enroll in the next weight control class, is asked to see his family physician and for further information contact the Health Department, phone 330.

Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Mar. 25. (U-P)—Reaction ranged from raised eyebrows to outright guffaws today over a potent pitching prediction made by Fred Thompson, Brooklyn Dodgers' president in charge of hitting and fewer errors.

Fred didn't quiver an eyelash when he asserted that Dodgers' Carl Erskine and Don Newcombe would "win eight or 10 more games" this season than the Philadelphia Phillies' Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons.

This dovetails the accepted theory that Roberts and Simmons are the National League's greatest one-two punch.

But it's just possible that Fred may have the final chuckle. You need go no farther back than last season for substantiating figures. And supporting them are statistics culled during the current spring training season.

Last season, for instance, Roberts was the leading winner in the league with 23 victories against 16 defeats. Simmons had 16 wins against 13 losses. That's a 39-29 total.

Meanwhile, Erskine started to live up to expectations with a league-leading percentage of .69 on 20 triumphs and only six defeats. To get a 39-29 total, Newcombe would have needed a 19-23 record—and if he ever got to the pitching post 42 times, you can bet your bottom dollar that he'd get more than 29 wins.

Big Newk comes marching back to Dodgerdom this season after two years in service. He last time out, in 1951, he was a 20-game winner and reports are that he looks better than ever. This is looks better than ever. This is training appearances in which he has given up only four hits in 10 innings.

Yet the odds of the two could be a "new Erskine." This is Indiana Carl's fourth full season in a Brooklyn uniform but it is the first time in which he has been able to relax from worry and admit that he is a regular. If he helps a great deal.

Ordinarily the collar he had had to knock himself out every spring of an attempt to win a job. By the time the campaign got under way he was worn and his pitching was burdened by that initial handicap. This year he has it made after that 26-game season of 1953 and a new World Series, unbroken mark of 14 in one game. It has made a big difference.

Erskine this time is pinning himself along slowly and carefully, working patiently on his control. Without leaving down he has been the first pitcher to go nine full innings and in 19 innings of work has permitted only three runs. His home record is 10-2, a 19-22 win which would have been a shut-out, was over the A's who have been the "dead horse" of the Gopher League.

"I didn't feel like I was doing much better. With his control, I could have been a terrific pitcher. And if Newcombe comes through as he should, it will not make a difference to Erskine."

Barbiturate Poisoning On Increase

NEW YORK (U-P)—Deaths from barbiturate poisoning total some what more than 400 yearly in the general population of the United States, or about one and a half times the number immediately prior to World War II, according to statisticians.

A variety of drugs and medicines and such poisons as wood and denatured alcohol, lead, carbon tetrachloride, benzene, kerosene, the caustic alkalis, and insecticides account for other deaths from accidental poisoning among industrial policyholders. Almost all the victims of lead and kerosene poisoning were young children. Much can be accomplished in reducing the loss of life, the statisticians point out, by keeping drugs and medicines in properly marked containers, by storing insecticides and disinfectants away from food and other edibles, and by keeping poisonous substances out of the reach of young children.

"The barbiturates present a more difficult problem," the statisticians observe. "Greater effects should be made to acquaint the general public with the dangers inherent in using such drugs carelessly. Further restrictions on the sale of the barbiturates would also tend to reduce the death toll."

Ask 18 Questions Before Buying Site for a Home

There are at least 18 points to consider in the purchase of a lot for a new home, according to Small Homes Guide. They are presented below as questions. A "yes" answer favors the site, indicating the value will tend to remain near its present level. A "no" is a mark against it.

1. Is the lot the right size and shape for the house you plan to build?
2. Is it well drained?
3. Is the soil good?
4. Are there shade trees?
5. Will the site be adequate without grading or filling?
6. Are these services available: water, sewers, gas, electricity, telephone, paved street, sidewalks, street lighting, fire and police protection, garbage removal?
7. Is the site close to transportation, schools, churches, shopping?
8. Is it distant from industrial or commercial developments, railroad, run-down areas, dumps and marshes or other health hazards?
9. Will zoning regulations permit the type of home you plan and prohibit undesirable building in the area?
10. Are all assessments against the land paid?
11. Are all taxes paid?

Dairymen Did You Know? Your Profits Can INCREASE

The average cow in Kentucky produces below 4,000 pounds of milk and 200 pounds of butterfat yearly according to information from the State Department of Agriculture.

The average cow on Dairy Herd Improvement test produced 8,432 pounds of milk and 332 pounds of butterfat per year according to latest reports.
The artificially sired daughters in this group exceeded this average by 626 pounds of milk and 50 pounds of butterfat per cow.

It pays to have high producing, efficient cows.
The Kentucky Artificial Breeding Association has 20 proved bulls whose daughters average 10-776 pounds of milk and 483 pounds of fat, and 18 outstanding young bulls bred for high production Services are available to Holstein, Jersey, Guernsey, and Brown Swiss bulls.

Let artificial breeding help "ease the squeeze" in dairying for you.

Last County Organized In Soil Conservation District

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Organization of the last county in Kentucky into a soil conservation district was announced here today by Henry Ward, conservation commissioner and chairman of the State Soil Conservation Committee.

Ward said that the state committee has approved creation of a soil conservation district in Henderson county, following a referendum at which landowners voted 155 to 69 in favor of that action. This means that all of the 120 counties of Kentucky are now embraced within such districts.

The state commissioner added that the state committee also has approved the inclusion of all of Davies county into a soil conservation district for that county.
Originally only the southern part of the county voted to form a district. At a referendum held March 13, landowners voted 173 to 162 to extend the district to include the entire county.

Actually there are now 122 soil conservation districts in Kentucky, giving this state the unusual distinction of having more districts than it has counties.
Ward said Logan county was divided into two districts—South and North Logan—and the Tradewater district consists of portions of Caldwell, Hopkins and Christian counties.

The Kentucky General Assembly in 1940 passed an act authorizing the establishment of soil conservation districts in the state, and the first district—South Logan—was voted into being in November that year.

Henderson county landowners twice before rejected creation of a soil conservation district, but this time its organization was endorsed by the Farm Bureau and other agricultural interests.

Ward announced that the state committee has named Frank Street and James McConathy, both of Henderson, as supervisors of the new district to aid in its organization. They will assist in the election of three other supervisors who will govern the affairs of the district.

The present members of the board of supervisors of Davies county will hold office in the extended district until the next regular election in 1956.

The five members of the board

"The addition of Henderson to the list of counties that have voted soil conservation districts and the addition of North Davies county to the South Davies area constitute an important milepost in the history of the soil conservation movement in Kentucky," Commissioner Ward said.

"The state committee long has favored such action by these counties, but took the position that the landowners should not be propagandized into taking favorable action."

"The spirit of cooperation and willingness to work together which now characterizes the leadership interested in the total program of conservation held out the hope that much greater progress is assured for the future."

Kentucky income tax forms may be obtained at court house banks, or district offices of the Kentucky Department of Revenue. The deadline for filing state returns is April 15.

Recipe of the Week

Spicy drop cookies are favorites for the lunch box or mid-afternoon snack. The use of applesauce in the recipe will help to keep the cookies fresh and moist, says Miss Florence Imlay, food specialist at the University of Kentucky.

SPICY DROP COOKIES
1 c fat
1 c sugar
1 egg
1 1/2 c sifted flour
1/2 t baking powder
1 t soda
1 t salt
1 t cinnamon
1/2 t cloves
1 t nutmeg
1/2 c seedless raisins
1/2 c nuts
1 c quick cooking rolled oats
1 c applesauce

Cream together fat and sugar; stir in the egg. Sift together all dry ingredients. Mix in oatmeal, raisins and nuts. Add to creamed mixture alternately with applesauce. Beat well. Drop by teaspoons onto greased baking sheets. Bake in moderate oven, 275 degrees, for about 15 minutes.

Menu: Fried chicken, sweet potatoes, green beans, o'Brien, congealed pineapple - carrot salad, corn sticks, butter and drop cookies with fruit sauce.

HOME SEWING GIVEN PROFESSIONAL LOOK

Home sewers are making dresses of cotton, rayon or silk will give a professional look to the garment if they follow the suggestion of Miss Dorothy Threlkeld, clothing specialist at the University of Kentucky.

Threlkeld recommends that you use an interfacing of pre-shrunk light weight muslin or permanent finish organza on either side of a front opening dress. The interfacing will provide a firm foundation for the buttons and buttonholes, and it will also keep the edges from rolling. The garment with interfacing will be much easier to iron after washing, and it will have a professional look. Collars and cuffs will also have a better appearance when they are so re-enforced, she said.

Plan Your Spring Hat To Suit Your Costume

Before you buy one of the elaborate, trimmed hats for spring, consider the suit or dress with which it is to be worn, is the advice of Miss Verna Latzke, specialist in clothing at the University of Kentucky. Although the flower-covered hat is feminine and pretty, its use requires a costume that is beautiful in its simplicity, she said. If the new spring dress is made of one of the lovely floral patterns, then the hat should depend on line and color for its smartness, with perhaps a single bit of trimming.

While the first spring hats will be small and decorative, those for late spring and early summer will be larger and more simple, Miss Latzke said.

Improve a Home's Looks With Front-Yard Patio

from SMALL HOMES GUIDE

The patio pictured below, from Small Homes Guide, is a charming extra that will add immeasurably to the appearance of any home. The drawing at right gives adequate directions for the home craftsman. The lamp post should be about seven feet high. Fence posts should be creosoted below grade as a protection against moisture and should be set about 18 inches deep. A pavement of used bricks, laid in a basket-weave pattern on tamped sand or cinders, is ideal for this front-of-the-house patio area.

mission, you save time at every delivery stop. And you can forget about clutching and shifting for good! It's optional at extra cost on 1/2-, 3/4- and 1-ton Chevrolet trucks.

You save on operating costs. New power saves you money every mile! The "Thriftmaster 235" engine, the "Loadmaster 235" and the "Jobmaster 261" (optional on 2-ton models at extra cost) deliver increased operating economy.

You save with lower upkeep, too. Extra chassis strength gives you money on maintenance. There are heavier axle shafts in two-ton models... bigger clutches in light- and heavy-duty models... stronger frames in all models.

And your savings start the day you buy. In fact, they start with the low price you pay and continue over the miles. Chevrolet is America's lowest-priced line of trucks. It's also the truck that has a traditionally higher trade-in value.

Come in and see all the wonderful new things you get in America's number one truck. We'll be glad to give you all the money-saving facts.

Do Not Leave Out The Nourishing Foods In The Family's Meals

Certain foods should not be left out of a day's meals, even though the amount of money spent for food is reduced, says Mrs. Anne Clemmons, assistant professor of foods at the University of Kentucky.

Milk tops the list, a "must" for big and little alike. Grownsups should have a pint a day and children from three-fourths to a quart, either as milk-to-drink-or-in-foods. Powdered milk can be prepared at home at the rate of 9 cents a quart, and evaporated milk at 16 cents, a considerable saving over bottled milk at 22 to 24 cents a quart.

Five fruits and vegetables should be served in the three meals. Included must be a citrus fruit or tomatoes, plus one green or yellow vegetable. The remainder may be as desired. Children and adults who shy away from vegetables should be encouraged to eat fruits. They provide bulk and mineral salts, the latter neutralizing acid-forming meats and breads.

A serving of meat daily, which includes poultry or fish, may be substituted occasionally with other protein foods, such as eggs, cheese, dried beans, peas or peanut butter.

One egg a day is recommended, but at least four a week should be eaten.

Bread and cereals will depend in amount on the calories needed. Growing children and men may require as much as six slices a day, women and girls less.

Butter on bread or in foods should be included.

Employees Of Kroger Get Profit

More than $2,161,940 from profits of the Kroger Co. has been credited to the accounts of members of the Kroger Employees Savings and Profit Sharing Plan for 1953. It has been announced by H. Layton Lindsey, Kroger Carbondale branch manager. This is equal to 78 cents on each dollar of employees' savings under the plan, which totaled $2,771,076 during the past year.

Accounts of Kroger employees in the Carbondale branch area have been credited with approximately $41,286 from the company's contribution. At the same time, they saved more than $4,055.

"We believe the savings and profit sharing plan has had a far-reaching effect in increasing employee interest in the jobs they do," Lindsey said. "And since we now, through the fund, actually own more than 13,500 shares of Kroger stock, we feel we have an added interest in the company," he added.

Under the plan a portion of Kroger profits is credited to employees' accounts in proportion to the amount each has saved from his own salary during the year. The fund, which was begun in July, 1951, now totals $10,244,228. This includes savings of $5,940,696 and company contributions of $4,303,532.

The number of employees in the plan has increased steadily through out the year, Lindsey said. At the year end, there were 16,995 members as compared with 15,881 a year earlier. This represents about 95 per cent of eligible employees.

The plan is available to all regular employees 21 years of age or older who have had two or more years of continuous service with Kroger.

PASTURES RESTORED IN DAVENESS COUNTY

Top-dressing with ammonium and seeding of timothy, ryegrass, ladino clover and lespedeza make up a program of restoring drought-damaged pastures in Daveness county, reports Floyd F. Thompson, assistant county agent for the University of Kentucky.

Guy Deane, who has been improving pastures for four years, plans to keep 30 cows and calves, 50 sheep and some hogs on his 100-acre farm. He plans to produce all his grain and hay and have 12 months of pasture.

At present Mr. Deane has 20 acres of fescue, orchard grass, ladino clover and bluegrass. He also pastures cover crops of Balbo rye and winter oats. For emergency pasture, he will sow sudan grass, he told Thompson.

To have early pasture this spring, Deane top-dressed with ammonium nitrate and 5-10-10 fertilizer.

THE MASTER of the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria, Capt. Pasquale Pezzuto, holds two babies, Andrea Pasquale Calvano (left) and Guiseppe Andreina Falasca, born aboard his vessel during a rough Atlantic crossing from southern Europe to New York. There were 10 expectant mothers aboard. The Calvano baby was born on St. Patrick's day and was named in honor of the ship and captain. (International)

SUGGESTS FEEDING STARTER TO PIGS

Farmers raising hogs this spring should consider the advantages of feeding pig starters, says C. E. Barnhart of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Starters fed beginning when pigs are about a week old, help to produce large litters of heavy pigs, he said. A pound and a half to a pound and three quarters of starter will put on a pound of gain on young pigs.

In order to make more money from hogs, Barnhart says farmers should try to save more pigs per litter. The Kentucky average is 6.9 pigs. It is said to take four to five pigs to pay the cost of producing a litter to weaning. Surveys show that 25 to 30 per cent of all pigs farrowed never reach market.

It is estimated that 80 per cent of these losses occur in the first few days after farrowing. Of the pigs raised, about one-out of 10 is a runt, slow gaining and unprofitable.

Said Barnhart: "When one realizes that each pig lost at farrowing represents a loss of 100 to 150 pounds of feed, and a pig lost at weaning costs its owner the equivalent of 200 to 250 pounds of feed, it becomes apparent that too little attention is being given to sucking litters." The remedy is better feeding right from birth. A good pig starter is a sure way to get the pigs off on the high road to fast gaining, profitable hogs, Barnhart concluded.

GOOD LEAF INSPIRES FARMERS IN ELLIOTT

"The best tobacco crop on record" has inspired farmers in Elliott county to plan to do a top job this year, according to UK County Agent Edgar Rice. Tobacco added a million and a half dollars to the incomes of Elliott county farmers the past season.

Farmers are responding to Rice's suggestion that they grow Ky 41 and Ky 35 varieties, and produce three fourths of the tobacco which these kinds, the county agent said.

Rice reported much interest in restoring pastures, and many farmers are reseeded damaged grassland. About 50 farmers are expected to enroll in the Green Pastures program.

The Doctor Disagrees

By Elizabeth Selbert

CHAPTER FORTY ONE

THE ROOM was in immediate uproar. Every doctor was on his feet, chairs tipped and fell. Only one man seemed interested in Dr. Lewis, and when that one, Appleman, saw the trend of majority feeling he contented himself with picking up a couple of chairs.

Stephen had met him in Kansas City. They reached Norfolk on Saturday evening, and went directly out to the circle so that Steve's family could share him. He showed the effects of his recent violent illness, was thin, and tired quickly—but he reassured everyone that he was all right and would be fine. He'd picked up an oriental infection which seemed to have cleared up, but the Army had given him his severance because of the trouble.

And, golly, was it good to be home! With his folks and his very own maid! He smiled his nice smile down at his startled wife. "That's good," he murmured. "It means sweetest."

The family gathered around, and their friends. Shelly accepted a suggestion that they stay at Everett's for a couple of nights. May Anna could not bear to let Shelly go so far as into town away from her. Shelly went in for some talk to Myra, told her to tell them at the office.

"No need," Myra interrupted. "Miss Browne won't look for you." "Tell her we'll be in the first of the week."

"I'll tell her that. You happy, honey?" Shelly laughed tremulously. "I guess so. I mean, I'm so excited I can't analyze my feelings. It was—a little confusing to have everything wind up so suddenly. The family knew he was coming—but they hadn't told me. I—I'm still dazed."

It was on Wednesday afternoon that Shelly and Stephen returned to their own home; Stephen explored the house, got acquainted with Agnes and talked so long to Myra out in the garden that Shelly lectured them to go in and dress for the Service Club's dinner. "At least one of us should have a clean face!"

She was getting into her frock when Stephen finally came upstairs. He stood in the doorway of her dressing room, watching her. The dress was a new one of blue-green silk, simple, smart—

"Don't you like it?" she asked. "I got it to wear with those white beads you sent me."

His blue eyes twinkled. "Those beads are jade, sugar."

"I know. That is, I suspected as much."

He still lingered in the doorway. "You're going to be terribly late, Stephen."

"They won't start without the speaker of the evening. Shelly..."

"Mmmmm!" Her fingers hovered over an array of perfume bottles.

"Shouldn't you wear a long skirt?" His hand swept in a circle around his own feet.

"Well, I guess you'd know..."

"But..." Now she turned to face him, and he grinned.

"Oh, I just had no idea. All the time I was away, I thought of you as you looked in a certain dress."

It was the dress she'd worn to May Anna's birthday dinner, a dress completely feminine, completely modest. "I'll change to that," she promised, "if you'll velvet—"

When Stephen came for her help with his tie she was dressed. His eye touched the violet, the single velvet shoulder strap, the hair-circle of flowers tucked into the back of her loosened hair.

"That's my girl!" he said contentedly, and Shelly smiled as she reached for the tie-ends.

"I can't wear tie-beads," she pointed out, slyly.

"They weren't in my dream..." he told her.

Her eyes were still thoughtful, but, on the whole, content, when she went downstairs and out to the car. Myra watched her. "Do I look as good as I did last September?" asked Shelly.

"You look fine," said Myra, smiling and remembering last September.

"I feel fine," Shelly answered serenely. "And why not? The wife of the guest of honor at the dinner tonight!"

"That works both ways," Stephen assured Myra as he got into his seat. "The guest of honor takes a deal of pride in his wife."

"You should!" Myra told him firmly.

As Shelly had expected, Stephen brought a group of contemporaries back to the house with them. She had, in fact, warned Myra and Agnes. At ten, three or four sick cars pulled up before the brick house, men in white dinner jackets, women in pretty gowns, went up the steps and through the white door, into the living room, out to the garden. Shelly moved about, the gracious hostess, the proud wife—no more. Nor less.

Craig Talbot loomed in the hall doorway, ready to assist in serving drinks or anywhere Shelly might seem to need him. Even at dinner he had watched Shelly closely; here in her home, his intent gaze attracted Stephen's attention.

He found a chance to ask his friend if anything seemed wrong. With Shelly.

"Why should anything..."

"Your eye has a definitely diagnostic gleam," Stephen told him.

Craig stroked the liquid still remaining in the thick-bottomed glass which he held. "Not diagnostic," he said softly. "It's an I-can't-believe-my-eyes gleam."

"Does that mean something?" Others close to the door were listening. Eleanor and Shelly—half of the group.
